The Legend

June 1938

Weequahic High School

Newark, New Jersey

PHYLLIS ROSENTEVA

Dedication

TO Miss Mabel M. Patton, our faculty adviser, we, the Class of June 1938, sincerely and affectionately dedicate this volume of The Legend.

Miss Patton's earnest counsel and genuine interest in our class has earned for her our great respect and a permanent place in our memories.

MISS MABEL M. PATTON

Foreword

IN the heat of Commencement and other final ceremonies we often neglect our most simple obligations to those who regretfully, yet cheerfully, wish us good luck and farewell, those who are responsible for these accomplishments of ours, but who choose to remain in the background.

We therefore express our sincere gratitude and appreciation to Miss Margaret McCullen, Mrs. Marie R. Bernstein, Miss M. Louise Moore, and Miss Elizabeth L. Cuttriss, the Legend advisers, for having worked with us and for having made possible the publication of this fine book.

We also thank our senior advisers, our home-room teachers and Miss Constance Bowerman, for their guidance and untiring efforts on our behalf.

Finally, we wish to express our heartfelt appreciation to the entire faculty and office staff who have given their time and energy unselfishly that we might be graduated with a finer perspective of life.

Weequahic the Beautiful

O school that bears an Indian name
Of old historic lore,
Whose legends of America
Lead to our very door:
Weequahic High! Weequahic High!
Hail to thy early fame;
May every deed within thy walls
Add luster to that name.

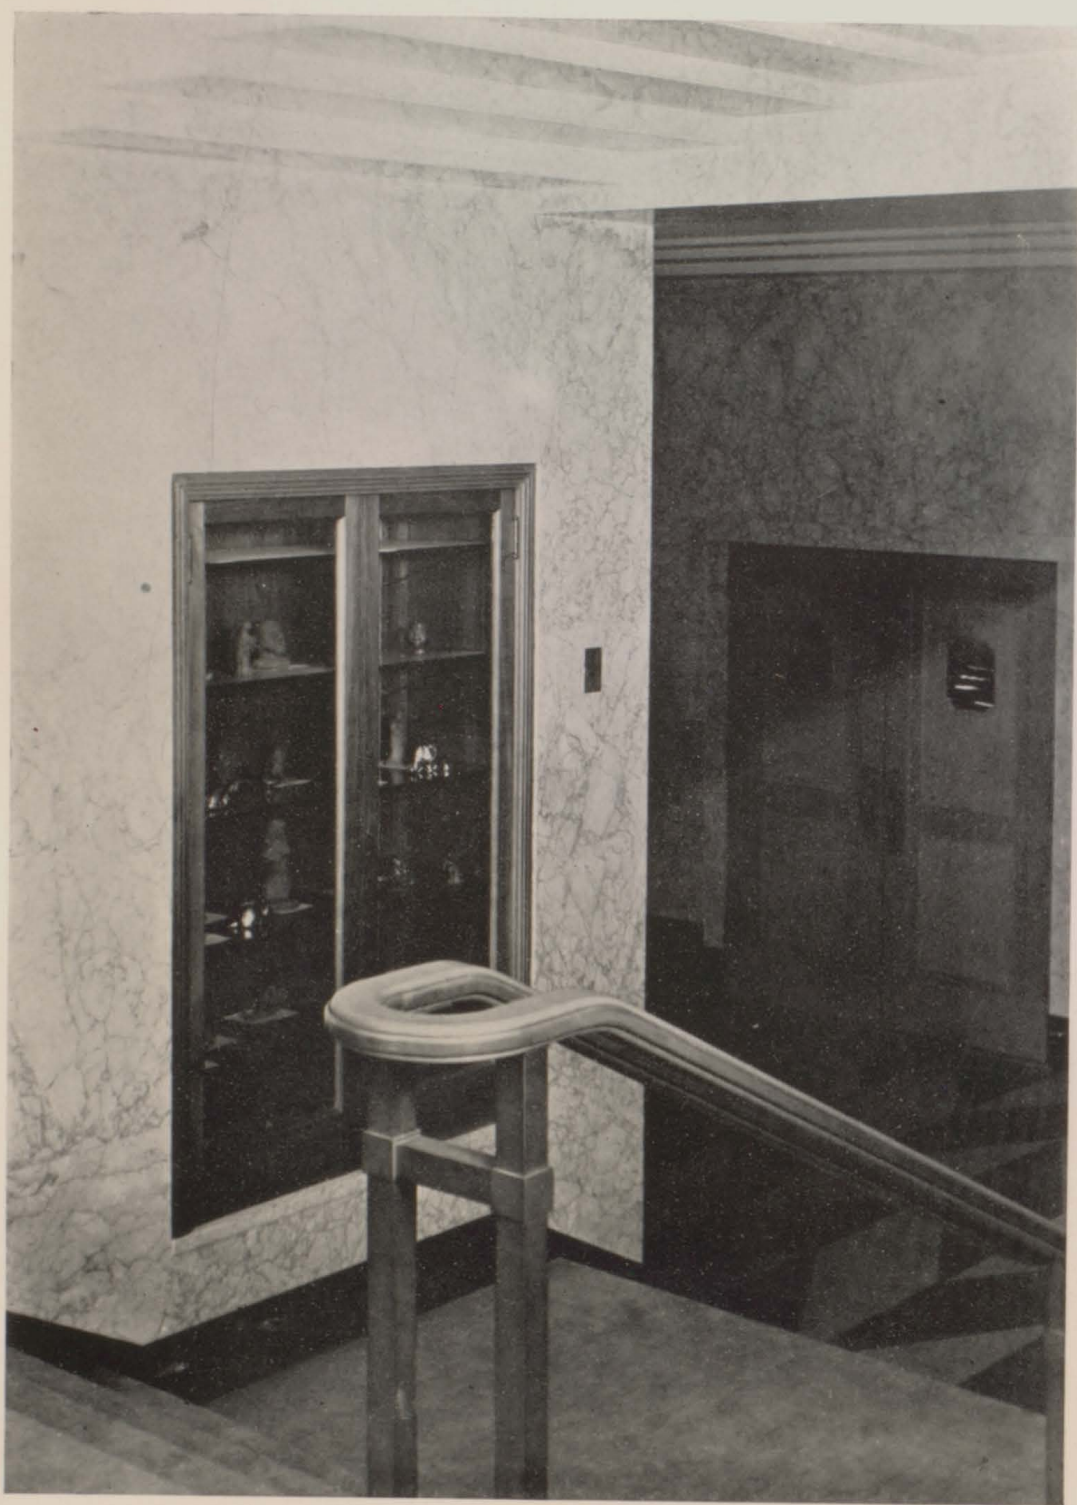

O beautiful for spacious halls
Where youth and knowledge meet;
Where hopes leap high where hearts beat strong,
And life runs ever sweet:
Weequahic High! Weequahic High!
Forever thou shalt be
Enthroned in lives of boys and girls,
Engraved in memory.

O beautiful for golden years
That run forever new;
May Time be gentle, Fate be kind
And each fond dream come true.
Weequahic High! Weequahic High!
God shed his grace on thee,
Confirm thy Youth with love of Truth
Throughout eternity.

In Memoriam

It is with deep sorrow that we mention two of our fellow-classmates who will not be with us at our graduation:

SIDNEY GRUBER
HERBERT WEISS

"And the stately ships go on,
To their haven under the hill;
And O for the touch of a vanished hand
And the sound of a voice that is still!"

Editorial

THROUGHOUT its colorful and active career in Weequahic the Class of June 1938 has always led the way in inaugurating new movements and ideas and in leaving them to be improved upon by the classes that will follow.

It was largely through the influence of members of our class that the O. B. A. Legislature was deprived of its power to elect our O. B. A. Councillors and the more democratic form of popular elections by the O. B. A. members was instituted.

In the matter of the collection of dues, our class set the precedent of preparing early for graduation and other expenses by starting its treasury during the 2A term.

The Senior Dance of the Class of June 1938 was definitely an experiment in social democracy. The chief innovations at this affair were the restriction of dress to informal, and the unwritten pledge of Promenaders not to attend places of paid entertainment after the dance. It is interesting to note that the Board of Education deemed our experiment so worthy that they gave us permission to occupy the school building until one o'clock, a thing unheard of before in prom history. Our dance has thus opened the way for a new conception of this gala event, and our open class discussion of it has already influenced the All Senior Hop, given by the 4B's only a week later.

And so we come up for graduation with a unique record behind us of political, economic, and social achievement in Weequahic High School. We have been alive to this changing age, have initiated what others discussed, and have acted while others considered. Now we are to separate, to be together no longer. But together we have placed the right foot forward to the best of our ability. Let us continue to keep in step and never lose the pioneer spirit.

BERTRAM LEVINSTONE.

On Graduation 1938

The time draws near, comrades, aboard and weigh Anchors. But scan the broad horizon ere
We leave this port of learning. Stamped there
Upon our mem'ries as 'twere yesterday,
Our studies, escapades, both sad and gay,
Of four long years pass in review. And where
Are "four long years"? Gone, vanished into air.
Enough of backward glance. Pursue the way!
Ahead and 'round about us there appear
Great multitudes of people crushed and bowed
Beneath the yoke dictatorship inflicts.
And here are mighty nations, who, like deer,
With interlocked horns contend. Oh, loud
Our protest be against such derelicts!

BERTRAM LEVINSTONE.

Consolation

Oh! I've tried to be a Byron
And I've tried to be a Scott
And I've tried to be a poet
Which is trying for a lot.

Oh! I've tried to make up poems
Of the heavens and the streets,
And I've tried to be a Shelley
And I've tried to be a Keats.

I doubt that I will reach their heights
That I will have their fame,
I guess a poet, great as they
Will never bear my name.

But now as I consider it
I know I was misled,
I'm better off than all of them
I'm living, but they're dead.

HENRY TEICHER.

Looking Forward -- Looking Backward

RIGHT at this time in our young lives we're looking ahead and with wide-eyed eager expectation face the world with a smile. Or are we smiling? I know that if you feel as I do, you're just a little uncertain and are really wondering what the world holds in store for you. Many of us are stepping up to the third rung on the ladder of education and the rest are bravely putting their best foot forward into the great business world.

Let us, for a moment, pause and instead of thinking of the future look back upon the past.

Do you remember a sunny day in September when we first entered this institution of learning? My but we felt proud—actually in high school! Ah yes, we felt proud, but not for very long. Well, I can't seem to forget those haughty seniors who treated us as though we were about the least important things on this earth. Come to think of it, though, they did spend a lot of time fooling around with us. Strange how seniors always have so much time to waste, isn't it? O yes, there was one more important thing. About a hundred of us were sent over to the annex and had to commute between the two buildings. You can't imagine how deeply our feelings were hurt. Why we actually thought that we were missing all the important happenings, but we soon got over that. After all, we saw less of those seniors than the others did.

The class organized as best it could in the first year. As time progressed these little freshmen grew accustomed to high school life. Not only did we learn to slave away at Latin, Science, Algebra, Bookkeeping, and many others, but we also learned to visit the city stadium each week and cheer away for all we were worth for our dear team. I'll wager that a good many Sunday mornings many of us failed to demand the comics in a voice as loud and clear as usual.

To quote one of my favorite teachers, "tempus was fugiting" and these little children entered into the second year of their high school life. And we really did enter the school life! Our faces were seen at the various club meetings and, if I remember correctly a few of us were daring enough to make an appearance at a school dance. The class joined together more and more. We kept our old friends and gathered new ones to us. A few of our group were successful enough to have the honor of seeing their names in print in the Calumet (and to think that now the freshies have their own column!!) Our second term ended (for all good things must come to an end) and we were left with a glorious summer ahead before starting the second half of this education.

We surely made it our business to see that we were well represented in our third year. Many members of our class assumed positions of great importance and we went places not only in the academic and social field but in the field of sport. We gained new members, lost old, saw friends being graduated, and new ones coming in. All in all we advanced forward toward that shining goal.

It is really quite impossible to put down all that has happened the last year. I think the realization that we were actually seniors came very suddenly and before we were accustomed to it the term had half passed and we were bidding farewell to the January class. There was a great bond between the two classes and it was no pleasure to see them depart.

Now the excitement has practically passed and there seems to be little to do except to look ahead, but never forget to look back upon these four happy years that we have spent together.

DOROTHY E. ROWE.

Life in the Lab

Oh, the life in the lab is idyllic,
A careless life and so free,
You live in the odor of H_2S
And the fumes of NH_3 .

Your hands are brown with acids
And black with silver stains.
Your eyes are red, your back is stiff
And full of rheumatic pains.

Mix up a cocktail of phosphates,
Pour in a test tube and boil.
Watch for a green precipitate,
Drop in a strip of lead foil.

Mix up some chlorine with hydrogen,
Put in a nice sunny place,
Then pick up your flying fingers,
And dig the glass from your face.

Take some As_2O_3
Subject to the arsenic test,
Take a good whiff of your product,
The coroner does all the rest.

Oh, the life in the lab, is idyllic,
So ponder and give this much thought,
That every good thing must come to an end,
That end, your hard study has brought.

When experiments have been completed,
And up for their final mark,
Then many 4A's are deleted,
For their lab time has been but a lark.

EDITH HIRSCHCOFF.

If

If you can say you've never been a traitor
To whispered confidences of a friend,
You may be sure the years have not been wasted,
Now that you've reached the journey's very end.
If you can call each fellow by his nickname,
And greet most any classmate with a smile;
You've been a worthy Captain on the Steamer;
And you can say the voyage was worthwhile.

If you've been "on the level" all the time,
If you have tried to do your very best,
No matter if you haven't gained perfection,
You still can say that you have passed the test.

And if you know you're honored and respected,
You need not feel the years have been in vain;
Though you are not among the highest mentioned,
You still possess a name without a stain.
And if some fellow classmate years from now,
In glancing through these pages sees your name,
If he recalls that you were once his "buddy,"
No greater honor should you wish to claim!

ANNE ROTHMAN.

What Is Freedom?

The new-born babe, of freedom what knows he?
His life is watched o'er, cared for, nurtured well.
But soon he leaves that infant stage. The spell
Of infancy now gone, he is more free:
His teachers guide him still to some degree,
But yearly does his independence swell.
Responsibility in parallel
Piles up. Yet Youth basks but in liberty.
But then, this upstart being thus imbued,
Does cultivate his prize and with it greed
For more, say some. Alas! this is not so!
For youth (in worldly ways perplexed and crude)
Today cries out, "Let be each word and deed
Restrained, but heard; unheeded never go!"

BERTRAM LEVINSTONE.

Lament

Oh, once I was a Freshman shy
Lonesome and scared to the core;
Came exams, and then promotion
And I was a Freshie no more.

Then I scornfully gazed at the Freshies
For I was a Sophomore!
Ten months did pass so rapidly
And I was a Soph no more.

"Just one more step and I'll be at the top,"
As a Junior I did roar.
Then came a day at the end of June
And I was a Junior no more.

A Senior, a Senior, a Senior am I!
To the prestige of one did I soar,
Along comes the Prom and Commencement Day
And I am a Senior no more.

I aspired, I worked, and at last I obtained
The goal that we all worked for;
But I'm not as happy as I thought I'd be,
For I'd like to start over once more.

DORIS SCHWARZ.

Mirage

With mouth agape and staring eye,
He saw a silver bird arise,
And soar until its droning roar
No more disturbed the peaceful skies.

Then came he to a river wide,
And o'er the glimm'ring water spanned
From land to land, from bank to bank,
He saw a graceful, shining band.

The long white road on which he trod,
Was hard and smooth, was straight and fair.
Sleek chariots in their colors bright,
Whizzed by him, shooting everywhere.

His glance rose up, what saw he there?
A structure reaching, stretching high,
As if to touch, perhaps to scrape
The clear blue of the far-off sky.

Exultant joy rose in his heart.
With loud and ringing voice he cried,
"Oh, see the work that Man has done!"
And he was filled with bursting pride.

"That Man has done." Dull echoes came,
And when he turned around, he spied
A dirty, dark, and gloomy place,
With pale, thin men at work inside.

"What make you here?" he queried low,
And they, with bitter voice did cry,
"The burning, blazing, blasting things,
Which cause our fellow men to die.

A hardy, clever group are we,
What wond'rous talents in us lie!
For every day, we make enough
To cause a million men to die.

Those silver birds of death swoop down,
The works of years are crushed to dust,
And what was once a garden fair,
Is now a black and smoking crust.

And what did live, and breathe the air,
Is naught, before the merciless gun.
Yes, open up your eyes and see
The lofty work that Man has done!"

Band and Orchestra

OUR two large instrumental organizations consist of the Band and Orchestra. These two organizations, under the supervision of Mr. Melnik, have gained the unanimous acclaim of all those who have seen and heard them perform. The Band, with Hulbert Kantor as drum-major, has been regarded as one of the best in the state, and the Orchestra has won an excellent reputation by its readings of such works as the symphonies of Beethoven and Mozart.

These two large units have assumed a prominent role in our school life. We have marched into the weekly assemblies to the harmonious strains and rhythms of the orchestra; the band has supplemented the interest at the football games; and both have combined their talents in giving us our annual Music Revue. The orchestra has played the processional and the recessional marches as well as some concert music at the commencement exercises.

Some of the most important members of these organizations are candidates for our June graduation. The concert-master's chair, is occupied by Edward Ormond. Lawrence Max plays cello parts on his baritone saxophone and Herbert Spitalny and Meyer Krisiloff are our famous trombone duo who occupy first and second chairs respectively. Arthur Goodman fills the oboe parts on his saxophone, and Pearl Berman is the first French horn player and librarian. Others include Hulbert Kantor, clarinet; Raymond Gorman and Henry Teicher, violin; Martin Stavitsky, bassoon (saxophone); Emanuel Yeskel, drums; and Lorraine Gash, alto horn.

These musicians, who were so instrumental in putting our music department on a sound basis, now venture forth into the world to spread their fame far beyond the confines of our school but never cease to reflect glory on their dear Alma Mater.

Glee Club

UNDER the able tutelage of Mrs. Archer, the varied vocal groups of Weequahic have passed through a pleasureable four years of choral singing.

The creative side of the Glee Club and Voice Classes was expressed in the many operettas given. They presented "Ship Ahoy," "Good News," and "H. M. S. Pinafore," all of which were huge successes. Branching out this past year, something original was offered in "Swanee to Swing." The plot was written by a student and welded together American Southern, Cowboy, and jazz tunes.

Varied programs were presented during the last four years; sometimes in collaboration with the instrumental groups of the school; more frequently alone. The Glee Club and allied groups performed before the Parent Teachers Association, led auditorium singing, vocalized over the air waves, presented Music Revues, and indulged in sundry other activities.

Throughout their activities these groups have cumulatively built up a wardrobe to be utilized in future performances. They leave to Weequahic a complete set of robes for her choral groups, an achievement envied by every other High School in the city. But most of all they hope they leave our Alma Mater a heritage of good music sung for good music's sake and the challenge, with the best wishes for success thrown in, to future vocalists who hope to surpass their achievements.

The veterans of these organizations in the graduating class are: Barbara Bernstein, President, and Marvin Lerner, Vice-President of Glee Club, Gladys Doroson, Jeanne Gartenberg, Pearl Berman, Rose Gallo, Ruth Maltz, Eleanora Sadkin, Judith Cohen, Belle Kuppersmith, Charlotte Mead, Paul Reimann, and Casimer Cheslock.

Basketball

THE basketball teams of Weequahic have been outstanding ever since the school first sponsored a court squad. However, the team of 1937-38, which won the championship of Northern New Jersey and advanced to the State semi-finals at Camden, was probably the best ever to represent the Orange and Brown.

Most observers agree that Seymour Masin was the guiding spirit on the Indian five, and the records show that he scored more than twice as many points as any other man on the squad. The husky star finished among the leading scorers of Essex County, and was named almost unanimously as the best center in the State. Abe Golum and Walter Reinhard contributed much steady floorwork throughout the season, and both could be depended upon to come through in a pinch. Golum's long tosses from mid-court came with surprising frequency, while Reinhard's fast breaks and fine defensive work featured the team's play. Sherman Harmelin, a veteran of the 1936-37 season, was again a shining light on the offense and helped pull the boys through a rigorous schedule. Dave Fast, a veteran court man, rendered invaluable service during the 1937 campaign. One cannot review the success of our basketball team without mentioning the two co-managers whose work behind the scenes all season made possible many of the things usually taken for granted by the average spectator. These two, Elmer Konwiser and Sidney Jimmy, deserve a world of credit, as do all the others who contributed their time and energy to a successful season.

Track and Field

SEYMOUR MASIN heads the tracksters from our graduating class. Through his skill records have toppled and many points have been chalked up for our side. "Swede" has specialized in the shot put and discus throw. He has been on the team four years and has in his possession four track letters.

Masin put the shot 51 feet 3 1/2 inches in 1937 to break the Board of Education Meet record and to better his former effort of 47 feet, 11 1/2 inches. Last year he threw the discus 129 feet 2 1/2 inches and shattered the City Meet record.

Edmund Szczytko turned in the best record of the year in the 220 yard dash with the fast time of 23.3 seconds. Eddie, despite his diminutive height, has been one of the outstanding point makers on the team, and has won four letters in track.

Philip Weil, one of our quieter boys, turned in the best performance in the 880 yard run in 1937. He ran the mile 2:9.0.

The manager of the 1938 edition of the track and cross-country teams was Seymour Schenkel.

Football

EVERY fall Weequahic has sent forth upon the gridiron a sturdy team to give all it could for dear Weequahic. When diplomas are presented in June, some of the ablest members of our team will receive them.

The bright stars of the backfield were Seymour Masin and Abe Golum. Masin, our all-around back, punted, passed, and ran equally well, and Golum supplemented his work in fine style in all the phases of his position. Charles Halpin, quarterback, and Raymond Mistretta, a reserve half, could always be relied upon to come through in a tough situation. In the center post Irving Rothman plugged up the middle of the line in excellent fashion and Phil Weil, a reserve, also did his bit.

Of the linemen, David Fast and Bob Halpin, as ends, deserve commendation for their fine defensive work and pass-catching; and Joseph Heinowitz and Leonard Raiken, for their fine cooperation and real effort. Although Mr. Lustig, our coach, will surely miss the June Thirty-Eighters in the lineup next fall, we know their spirit will remain with him and be passed on for future campaigns.

Baseball

THE Class of June 1938 is well represented on the varsity baseball team. The nucleus of the team consists of six athletes from this class: David Konel, Walter Reinhard, David Fast, Abe Golum, Robert Maley, and Milton Kornblatt.

Dave Konel, called "Duvy" by his friends, has covered the second sack for the last two seasons, and has done it expertly. In 1937 Konel was the only one on our team to make the All-City Nine, and he well deserved the honor.

Walt Reinhard, a tall slim youth, covers the initial bag. He took over the task in 1937 and has protected the base in high style.

Dave Fast is an all around athlete and needs no introduction. His handling of the short-stop position deserves special mention. He has been rewarded for his efforts in sports with a scholarship to Villanova where he intends to continue his athletic career.

Abe Golum has played behind the plate for the past two years. His steadying influence and his skill in his position mark him as one of the outstanding personalities on the team.

Girls' Sports

THE girls of the Class of June '38 have been particularly active in athletics and have taken advantage of all opportunities offered to participate in activities for health, recreation, and sport. The most popular have been Basketball, Hockey, and Archery, but Badminton, Volleyball, Riding, Swimming, Tennis, and Fencing have had an enthusiastic following.

A great deal of credit should be given to those girls who have worked diligently through the four year period, and have earned the coveted honor of a pin or letter.

Our leading girl athletes, who have won the letter and the pin are: Evelyn Friedrich, Roberta Roth, Gertrude Silber, Myriam Goldman, Jean Rae Turner, and Miriam Gruber.

Those who have won the "W" are: Janet Alexander, Natalie Blaustein, Anna Dunaj, Dorothy Goldberg, Doris Jadull, Berenice Lakoff, Ruth Lart, Claire Liebowitz, Lillian Mastihuba, Ethel Rawitz, Jane Rohlffs, Dorothy Rowe, and Doris Schwartz.

Personals

Class Will

WE, the class of June, 1938, of Weequahic High School, being of sound mind and generous disposition, do hereby inscribe and publish this, our last will and testament.

To Mr. Herzberg, our highest admiration for his outstanding executive ability, and for the high ideals which he set forth for us.

To Mr. White, profound thanks for his unwaning patience and assistance when despair (and schedule trouble) had conquered us.

To Miss Patton, our faculty advisor, we leave our deepest appreciation for all that she has done for us as individuals and as a class.

To Miss Bowerman, our sincere gratitude for her helping hand in smoothing the rugged pathway to a questionable future.

To our homeroom teachers, "merci beaucoup" for their inspiring guidance.

To the faculty, fondest memories of unprepared lessons and classroom boners.

To the 4B's, the ecstasy, mingled with sorrow, of entering into their last term at Weequahic, and the singularity of being the uppermost class in the school.

To the Juniors, the exclusive right to use all aids and implements; namely—all those sets of old examinations, ponies, notes, and marked books, which will facilitate the successful completion of their third year of courses.

To the Sophomores, the honor, power, and superiority that is theirs to snub, slight, or otherwise ignore those tiny, darting figures called Freshmen.

To the Freshmen, we leave enough moral and physical strength to be able to do the following:

1. Complete their four year course at Weequahic High School with a record of which they can be proud.
2. Stand up defiantly against all upper classmen, who feel it their duty to give them misleading directions and use them as the object of those usual, humorous (?) pranks.

To all students at Weequahic, an abundance of school spirit to be loudly displayed at our athletic events.

To the Ambitious Ones, our well stocked, beautiful library, whose books are to be used as a supplement to the regular school reading.

To all those who feel irresistible impulses to ignore the rules of our fair school, we leave the watchful eyes of the members of the Sagamore Patrol and the accusing finger of an austere judge.

To the future students of Weequahic High School, we leave our dear Alma Mater, to be honored, defended and upheld in all standards.

We hereby appoint Mr. Max J. Herzberg as sole executor of this will.

Signed,

CLASS OF JUNE 1938.

Class Prophecy

ON a sultry, summer evening in June, 1958, excitement prevailed in the reception room of the Fernville Finishing School, owned by the Misses Dorothy Rowe and Evelyn Friedrich. Marcia Levitt, of the literary department, as verbose as ever, was delivering an oration on the joys of seeing one's old friends again. You see—the class of June 1938 was holding its first reunion (we were always a rather slow group, getting there eventually, however). Professor Elmer Muller, who had recently discovered a fallacy in Dalton's Atomic Theory, tooted the horn of his car, and the Misses Korey, Berger, Gussow and Gartenberg, of the faculty, dashed out. Another car, driven by Jack Lesnik, prominent banker, rolled up, and the rest of us, including Bernard Kent, Ph. D., Harold Widowsky, B. S., and Victor Brown, R. S. V. P., piled in. The two cars set out gaily for the affair, which was to be held at the immense theater, famed for the presentations of Eugene Deutch's "Dizzy Dramas." As we drove along, loudly singing old school songs, a car suddenly appeared from a dark side street, and before the driver of our auto could apply his brakes, there was a sickening crash. Jack leaped out of the car and angrily approached the other driver, ready for an argument. His angry face, however, turned into a beaming countenance, when he saw that the other driver was none other than his old schoolmate, Edward Denholtz, obliging Irving Rothman, Abe Golum and Elmer Konwiser by taking them to the Class Reunion. A passer-by, thinking that there had been a serious accident, had summoned the police car and an ambulance, which now drove up beside us. Dr. Sylvia Finkler rushed forward, prepared to render assistance. Close behind was Nurse Charlotte Mead. Trailing them were Robert Swartz and Raymond Mirrer, famous lawyers, who were devoting their lives to chasing ambulances. Scurrying to and fro were those two Irish policemen, Bob and Charles Halpin, busily recording the names of those involved. Since our car was now being removed by the Goldberg Wrecking Company, we continued on our way in the ambulance. With sirens shrieking, we pulled up at our destination and were greeted by our beloved senior advisors, together with Bert Levinstone, Marvin Lerner, and Louis Caplan, organizers of the project.

Our party found some choice seats, and we eagerly glanced around to see what famous personages were present, Governor Gartner and Mayor Maley, sitting together, were surrounded by an admiring group, including Norma Kessler, Lorraine Gash, and Lucille Gilman. Two rows in front of us sat Peggy Varni, the Emily Post of our day, inviting Florence Brockman and Bernard Scharf to a tea at her home in honor of Ruth Maltz, renowned concert pianist. Selma Lowitz and Bertha Feinberg, journalists, were busily engaged jotting down the names of those present, while Bernard Rolston was trying to secure a pencil and paper from Aaron Kruger to make a note of the approaching date of the puppet show of Ruth Lart and Doris Lasko. Sidney Jimmy and Marvin Shapiro stood on their seats, eagerly snapping candid camera pictures of a number of people in the audience. Hulbert Kantor, Supreme Court justice, was caught by those friends while sucking a lollypop.

Suddenly a hush fell over the audience as Arthur Goodman, the smiling, jovial, master of ceremonies, stepped before the microphone. He announced that the first feature on the program would be a short play, enacted by some well-known members of our class. Lucille Miller, "The Second Fanny Brice," was the hilarious heroine, while other able members of the class were Helen Sachs, Florence Perell, Leonard Golden and Lucille Axelrad. When this was finished and had been wildly applauded, Eugene Szerlip was asked by the more serious minded members of the audience to step up to the stage and explain by means of diagrams how he and Thomas Rommer removed a man's heart and put it back in one minute flat while in the operating room of the Crastnopol Foundation Hospital, (formerly Rockefeller Foundation). The next person to appear before us was Gertrude Silber, who did an interpretive dance, accompanied by the soulful violin playing of Lawrence Max. Following this, we were entertained by the Harmony Sisters, Anne Rothman, Edith Hirschcoff and Gladys Doroson, who sang a song written exclusively for them by Edward Ormond.

The apparatus was then set up for a film to be shown by Franklin Sklar, concerning his explorations among the Eskimos. When the pictures were flashed upon the screen, we cried out with astonishment upon seeing Cyrus Berger and Alvin Zadoff poking their heads out from the doorway of an igloo, while Walter Green was vainly trying to keep his balance in a "kayak". Robert Behrendt, local playboy, trying to get away from it all, was wandering around admiring the polar bears. All of a sudden there was a sharp, splitting noise, and the film ceased. The stamping of feet and clapping of hands brought Edgar Search, noted electrician to the rescue. While this was being attended to, Ethel Rawitz stood up to announce that her club was going to have a bridge party for the benefit of the Weequahic Scholarship Fund on Sunday evening, at the home of Edith Price. After the movie had been completed, we gathered in the adjoining ballroom, where music for dancing was supplied by Herbie Spitalny's orchestra, with Casimer Cheslock as vocalist. Duane Le Baron, Paul Reimann, Charles Toth and Emanuel Yeskel, businessmen, discussing the ups and downs of the stock market, could not be removed from the refreshment counter, where Doris Curtin and Jane Rohlffs, domestic science experts, were serving some of their famous, delicious delicacies. Jean Rae Turner and Josephine Carr were discussing a recent concert with Ben Shalit, the famous engineer, who had just finished building a dam in Europe at the request of Dictator Kuskin of Mistrettania. As the happy couples swayed to the melodious rhythms of the orchestra, Beatryce Meisterman, exclusive dress designer, held the attention of Roberta Roth, Sascha Newman, and Doris Jadull, by telling them of the latest style trends.

The fun went on until the wee, small hours of the morning. At last the hour for departure was upon us. Sad farewells were said, accompanied by promises to see that another reunion would be held in the near future. Above the sounds of the various partings, we heard Eleanora Sadkin and Anthony Denning engaged in a heated discussion about the relative merits of painting and photography. We made our way reluctantly to a taxi, and our last view as we drove away was that of Sherman Harmelin, attempting to put the electric washing machine, that he had won as a door prize, in the back seat of his automobile.

Pins and Needles

(A story without a point)

THE following narrative concerns itself with four people of the Punn family, one well known and highly esteemed (?) in this, our Alma Mater. The characters are one Adamn Punn and his wife Justa, and Isaiah Punn and his wife Ima.

Our friends entered one of the lesser known night-clubs. Adamn ordered a STEIN of beer. "SHALIT be a GREENSTEIN, a SILVERSTEIN, or a GOLDSTEIN?" asked the waiter. "Just a BIERMAN, not a WEINSTEIN," he answered. Isaiah, or Is, only wanted a double DECKERT sandwich, while Justa and Ima ordered MALTZ milks.

The waiter came back and set them up in a ROWE on the table. "What's the PRICE?" asked Is. Just then Adamn took a sip and yelled, "This is an ORNSTEIN! I asked for a STEINER beer."

"Quiet," said Ima, who was looking around at the flowers in the place. "Have you got a GARTNER in this BURG?" "Yes, GARTENBERG," mumbled the Chinese waiter. "This is a FEINBERG."

Adamn was still angry over his drink. "Don't be ROTHMAN," soothed Justa. Is asked Adamn, "Has she got a cold?"

"Why?" "I heard HIRSCHCOFF."

Just then a friend, Red by name, sauntered over to their table. "Let's drink," he said. "All right, if you'll BYEFF one," said the gang. Instead, he ordered a deKANTER of cocktails. "Is that the fellow who married Doris over there?" asked Red. "No that's DOROSON," ventured Is. "Oh," said Red, "Will you ask her to dance with me?" To this Adamn urged, "Go yourself and AXELRAD."

When he had gone, Justa said, "You know, he's so RICH he ought to be put in jail. He's got plenty of SILBER and GOLDMAN." "Yes," interposed Ima, "but then after the Revolution there would be the class of the FRIEDRICH." "That's if someone didn't CHOPLO their heads off or if they GOTTFRIED before they were led to the GALLO," added Is. "You're a lot of HUIE," said Adamn.

"That MAX no difference," said Is, "I'm no REICHMAN, but I've got some PERELLS and a FINESILVER and GOLD watch with eleven jewels." "Oh, a LEVIN-STONE watch. You're RICHTER than I. Let's see it," said Adamn, and he made a lunge for it. "LESNICK alone! You'll soon have it BROCKMAN," Is shouted as his wife asked, "Why do you always SIMON at the ends of words?"

"Never mind. Waiter," he called, "some REIMANN." Then getting angry at Ima, he growled, "I'll GEITTER and LERNER to be WEISS!" "TEICHER," corrected Adamn.

Still in the same mood, Is commented, "Oh, there are those two /#X!?X$ comedians." "Be GOODMAN," admonished Justa, "call them LOWITZ or RAWITZ." "Oh LIEB me alone," Is begged. "Well I'm for one (!) HALPIN you'll feel better," commented Ima. "And I'm HALPIN, too (!)" remarked Justa.

Is spat. "Don't SPITALNY floor; the people here are SLAVIN hard enough," Adamn said. "Well, tell the waiter to bring a PURO hot scotch and soda, but not to BERNSTEIN." Red rushed up to the table.

He said, "Have you got a CARR?" Joe just called and told me it's raining." "WIDOWSKY know about that?" ejaculated Is, "Why did you HENIG up; I wanted to talk to him."

"When are we GORLIN home? This place MARX me tired," whined Justa.

This time Adamn got ROTH with her. Here's some tough gum. CHUBATOVSKY and shut up, WEIL I think," he bellowed. "This gum is HARMELIN you think," cooed Justa. "Well," Adamn snapped, "I didn't tell you to GRAUBARD all. Next time you'll LEVITT alone."

Finally Isaiah ended it all by saying, "Put on your SCHARF and DENNING we'll go. I'll BLAUSTEIN horn when I'm ready. Be FAST." And he went to get the car.

"Let's HORELL up, so we can go VARNI gets here," Ima suggested. Justa was so impatient that she drew aside the CURTIN and began to KRAMER neck at the window. When Is arrived, they all SADKIN the car and drove away. It was so dark that they had to SEARCH for the road.

Suddenly Is exclaimed, "By GOLUM, there's a GREEN light. I'm COHEN to speed up before it turns GOLDEN. No CAPLAN catch me." "He'll CHESLOCK you up if he does and then you'll be in DEUTCH!" admonished Ima.

Suddenly Is yelled "Aw HECHT! The car stalled." He got out and opened the hood. "Adamn, SCHENKEL leg and ZIMMY a hammer," he called. Adamn ROSEN brought out the desired tool and Is gave the spark plugs a few SACHS. "Go to Ima and YESKEL if she's got a MIRRER." When Adamn came out he asked, "What should I do with the motor, ROMMER?" "Yes, LE BARON," came the muffled answer.

After five minutes Is emerged from the intricacies of the motor and said, "It's done. GUSSOW I did it." Adamn asked him, "WOLLER plugs fire well now?"

The answer never came, for the sky suddenly got GRAY and it started to REINHARD. Justa expressed the view that it would keep up. "You're a BODOR of no good," said Ima.

"Where can we go?" queried Is. "If we can get to LONDON, I know a rich BERGER there who would shelter us. He lives in a big BROWN house," suggested Adamn. "What's his name?" came from Is. "ORMOND your own business," snapped Adamn. "Gee," Is complained, "KANENGISER even ask a question?"

"Here's the place," shouted Adamn. "Shall I park here?" "No, drive FERDINAND park in the rear. It looks like no one is home, or may be DAVIS sleep." "KONEL imagine that?" punned Is. "Well anyway," Ima ventured, "see if we can MEAD the people. VERNICK on the door."

"I'm so tired," mumbled Justa. "So is the car," repunned Is. "Do you want me to KOREY you in?" "LESSER jokes," said Adamn, getting angry. "Oh," said Ima, "You KLEINERT a flea." "None of SZERLIP," rasped Adamn, and left to perform his mission. A head appeared at a window and Adamn said, "ISSERMAN here by the name of SZCZYTKO?" The head said, "Yes, WEINER expected you so the door is locked. RUBINFELD for the key but can't find it. You'll have to KLIMAN the window and bring your TRASCHEN that way, too." "Don't BRODSKY yourself about us." "I won't, only KLASNER window after you."

Once they were in, Adamn boastfully said, "Now, what do you FINKLER 'bout that?" "I think it's o. k., BURT in ZADOFF saying that, you should think KOTHER thoughts," Is said. "What, for instance?" he asked and then, "Don't SCHRAGER shoulders." "PARNESS me," apologised Is.

"This talk won't ALTER our position," interposed Ima, "Let's go to sleep." "All right. Adamn, open the window," said Justa. And when he found it very difficult, "My LANDSMAN, pull hard!" With a mighty effort he succeeded in opening it, and suddenly dropped like a plummet to the floor. They all began to MILLER 'round him. "WEITZ the matter?" "GASH, I DUNAJ." "What'll we do FEURHEIM?" they said. He revived and gasped, "Justa little LART trouble." Justa frivolously quipped, "A little KIRSCH and he'll be a NEWMAN." "Well," Is countered, "Go KURTZ him before he goes KATCHEN another spell." Justa scolded, "That's enough. Go get a GLASSER water. You're a RUDERMAN than I thought." He went away mumbling, "KENT a guy show a MARKOWITZ if he's gifted that way?" When he came back Ima said, "Where LUBIN all this time?" and as he opened his mouth to answer, Justa interrupted with, "Take the GLASOFER and don't REITER with your remarks." Always SPERLING the fun," Is cracked, "I've got to HANDLER with kid gloves." "Yes, my BELOVED," said Ima, and turned to Justa saying, "What do you FINK of that?" Is immediately remarked, "Don't SCHLENGER the bull. Keep STOLL or I'll pop you in the TOTH."

"Nice WEBER if it don't rain," someone cheerfully said. "LORDI me, TURNER 'round and SAVITT till tomorrow. I'm GOOEN TERR sleep." "I'd RADLER sleep too."

Soon the snoring was so loud that a GRIMME SPECTOR who came to FOSTER bad dreams was scared away by it. However, in trying to GROPPER 'round in the dark, it awoke Is, who caught it in the act of lifting a GOLDFARB for his watch. "HOLTZ everything!" he shouted. "You're very KRAFTCHIC, stealing my GOLDBERG, I mean farb. Adamn, KOTELL the boss we're leaving. It's SEIFER in the open air." Just then the ghost disappeared and Ima, who had gotten up, ROSEN-HANDED her hand to him, saying, "You're a BRAVERMAN than I imagined. MALEY congratulate you?" Came the answer, "Sure . . . Say where's that farb? It's disappeared with the ghost." "Are you SCHWARTZ gone?" "Look," ejaculated Adamn, "the big SIMSON HODES it in his hand and thinks its lost."

"My lucky SKLAR is shining tonight. I would have SWARTZ gone," said Is. "Aw, let's get out of here. Are you CUMMINS?"

"Tell me FRANKLIN, where do you intend to go?" they asked. "Anywhere, but LASKO," he answered. "O. k., KOPATONSKY, lead the way," ventured Adamn. "GOLDIS where you find it, says I. Are you going to sleep in the GORDON?" Is rasped back, "Don't say things like that any MAURER I'll . . ."

"All right, we KANE go home now; it stopped raining," interposed Justa. "It did? DENHOLTZ this candle and follow me," ordered Is.

"Ima, you look KALFUS sleep," said Justa, "but DORNFELD badly. It's nearly morning." And so, bidding "auf WIDERKEHR" to their host, the party set out for home. As soon as they got the car ROLSTON, what SHAPIROn the HARRISON but a LAKOFF to the WEST. "We're CHESSIN time for a morning dip," said Is brightly. "Like a DENMAN?" asked his wife. "Do you mean a caveman?"

"Say, who's your BOBROW?" Ima irrelevantly queried. And, "Oh, look at the little BERDICK," ejaculated Justa. But back to our tale.

"Can you FISCHMAN?" Adamn was asked. "Sure. Maybe we'll catch some KARP." "And if you're a good MARKMAN, you might bag some STURZBURG," encouraged Justa. "Sturgeon, you mean," yapped Adamn, thoroughly disgusted, "When are we GORMAN home? Let's SCHOFEL off."

BAIME bye they reached home and when Is got out of the car like a shot out of a GANNON, Ima began to TEPPER head. Finally, Is said, "Have you even been to MOSCOWITZ beautiful there," and they were sure that he had been affected by this story as you probably are, dear reader.

BE A HIGHER-UP

High School students of today will be the business executives and professional leaders of tomorrow.

This is inevitable.

The place you attain rests largely in your own desires and in your will to try for it.

One good rule is to profit by the experiences of those who have "made the grade."
